

How To Paint Temporary Stained Glass On Windows (With Paint Recipe)

Painting on your glass front doors or windows of your house has become quite a trend in the past few weeks! It is a very joyful way to bring a witness and some cheer to your neighborhood, and an absolute delight for kids! It is something that is super easy to create. This is an idea that since we can't attend church – it a way to bring a little church to us!

So here is how to paint temporary stained glass on windows.

Recipe For Temporary Window Paint

The author did experiment with different things such as tempera paint, acrylic paint, mixing with water, etc. And here's the deal... it really does work best when you mix the paint with dish soap!

Window Paint Recipe:

- 1/2 paint
- 1/2 dish soap

What kind of paints work for window painting?

- washable kid paint
- poster paint
- acrylic craft paint
- tempera paint

Yep, pretty much all paints. As long as it's not an actual glass paint, it will come back off of the glass. Also, we found that it was super easy to use our deviled egg plate as a paint palette. It totally washes clean when you're finished with it!

Have fun